WASHINGTON, July 2.—David M. Lamar, stock broker of New York, on the witness stand here today before the senate lobby committee, frankly admitted that he had impersonated representatives and others of national fame in calling up officials of Edward Lauterbach, the New York attorney. Lamar insisted that he acted at all times through friendship for Lauterbach and said he only wanted to secure him "perfectly legal employment." Lamar said that he called both Judge Lovett of the Harrison lines and Paul D. Cravath, saying each time that he was Representative Riordan. His testimony caused a sensation among the members of the committee.

Gives Lie to Lovett
"Lovett's statement was not true as he said that Lauterbach tried to 'blackmail' him," emphatically asserted Lamar. "Lauterbach—the little man with the big heart—Lauterbach, the man who can't keep a dollar in his pocket because he can't bear suffering."

Coming back to the Riordan-Lovett conversation, Lamar said that he called Lovett, using Riordan's name.

"How did you happen to mention his name?" asked Nelson.
"Oh, it just came to me," he said. Lamar readily admitted that he had used Representative Palmer's name in talking to Lewis Cass Ledyard.

"Did you intimate that Lauterbach had influence in Washington?" asked Nelson.

"I'll explain in substance. Then you can form your own judgment," replied Lamar.

"Answer the question," demanded Overman.
"I am strongly of the opinion," said the witness, "that I went strongly toward the affirmative in my conversation with Mr. Ledyard, but I get down to it, senator—I'll get down to it."

"How did you happen to use Palmer's name?" asked Nelson.

LA CROSSE POLICE HUNT FOR SLAYER

Winona Murderer Said to Have Taken Train to
This City; Not on Train

MAY HAVE LEAPED FROM COACH

Body of Bulgarian Found in Bushes with Skull
Crushed; Robbery
the Motive

In response to a telephone message from Sheriff W. E. Parr, of Winona, shortly before noon today, the local police car made a hurried trip to Grand Crossing shortly after noon today where Captain Dugan and Detective Fitzsimmons made a thorough search of train No. 52 on the Burlington road as it came in for Paul Petroff, an Armenian, accused of the murder of Christ Gerchoff, near Winona last Wednesday.

According to the sheriff's message Petroff had been seen getting on the train for La Crosse this morning. A thorough search of the train by the local police failed to find any man answering Petroff's description nor were any passengers found who had seen him. It is believed that if he boarded the train at Winona he got off before reaching La Crosse.

Petroff is accused of murdering Christ Gerchoff, a Bulgarian, hiding the body in some bushes in East Burns Valley. Robbery was the motive and Petroff is said to be carrying between four and five hundred dollars, the money taken from his victim. The body was found in the bushes Sunday with the head crushed either by a club or an axe.

According to the description sent by Sheriff Parr, Petroff is between twenty-eight and thirty years old, five feet and four inches tall, weighs 140 pounds, has black hair and a black mustache and heavy eyebrows, wore a black soft hat, and striped shirt and trousers, wears black button shoes about No. 7 in size. He is said to be carrying an old country grip. He has in his possession between four and five hundred dollars.

The coroner's jury at Winona found that "Christ Gerchoff came to his death in East Burns Valley as the result of a blow from some heavy instrument delivered in all probability by one Paul Petroff, on Wednesday, June 25, 1913."

URGES PROFIT SHARING

GEORGE W. PERKINS SAYS MEN
ARE NOT TO BE SATISFIED WITH ARBITRARY MONEY
ADVANCE IN PAY

SAGAMORE BEACH, Mass., July 2.—Profit sharing, not wage increases, is the only answer to the labor versus capital conflict, according to George W. Perkins, former partner of J. P. Morgan, who spoke before the Sociological conference today on the subject, "The workers' fair share."

"Some very wealthy men who today complain labor is demanding more and more, are themselves to blame for it," he said.

"They made great fortunes and then endowed many institutions of learning. The laboring men studied and where they formerly struck for wage increases they are today demanding a share in the profits of the large corporations they work for. It is a higher rate of intelligence at work, and, this being so, no arbitrary dollar and cent increase will ever prove satisfactory."

COOPER INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Otto Klammer, a cooper, 2 was struck and injured by an automobile driven by Mr. Harry Palmer, wife of the saloon on the Mormon Coulee road, as he was returning to his home, 2818 Mormon Coulee, last night from his work. Klammer was dragged for a considerable distance before the machine passed over him, according to eye witnesses of the accident. His head, leg and shoulder were cut and he was badly shaken up. The accident occurred at the foot of the hill just inside the city limits. Klammer was taken to the Lutheran hospital by Mrs. Palmer, where his injuries were dressed. Mrs. Palmer was alone in the machine. Mr. Klammer will recover.

LAW HOTEL TO AGAIN APPLY

Friends of Two Refused Licenses to Make Desperate Effort for a Reconsideration

For the purpose of reconsidering the action taken at the meeting last Friday when J. F. Schrank, proprietor of the cafe, 412 Main street, and W. A. Atchison, lessee of the Law hotel and buffet, were refused liquor licenses, the common council will hold a special meeting tonight. The two applications will again be presented together with a new application made by Frank Wehrer, proprietor of the Wisconsin House, on South Third street. The special meeting was called for tonight by Mayor Orl Sorenson on the petition of five aldermen.

At the meeting last Friday the Schrank cafe was refused a license by a seven to twelve vote, two aldermen, Neumann and Downs being absent. Those who voted in favor of granting Mr. Schrank a license were: Alderman Bartl, Collins, Kohn, Kerner, Rybold, Schneeberger and Worth. Those who voted against the Schrank license were: Aldermen Beddesem, Grover, Houska, Kemper, Mahoney, Roellig, Roth, E. O. Schultz, Robert Schutze, Smith, Strauss and Torrance.

All of the aldermen except Alderman Kohn, voted against granting a license to Mr. Atchison, proprietor of the Law hotel. Both licenses were opposed on the grounds that the applicants permitted immoral women to frequent their places of business. It is expected that a desperate effort will be made by the friends of both applicants to have the council reconsider its unfavorable action at the meeting tonight.

RECOVER $100,000 LOOT

NEW YORK, July 2.—Following a search which had continued since last Saturday, detectives today found 450 pieces of jewelry valued at $100,000 in a suitcase in the Pennsylvania station at 33rd street and Seventh avenue. The gems were those stolen from the Udall and Ballou jewelry store. The suitcase had been checked in the parcel room and the person who carried away the jewels evidently was afraid to call for the loot.

CHAMP ALL IN WHITE

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Speaker Champ Clark followed official precedent of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan today when he appeared for his official duties as a presiding officer of the house in a white shirt, white shirt, white necktie, white shoes and white socks. With his white hair the speaker resembled nothing so much as a mountain of ice cream.

SHERIFF AFTER NEGRO

Sheriff William Geiger of Faribault, Minn., arrived in La Crosse today for William Ewing, the negro captured here by Detective Joseph McGrath on a warrant more than two years old. Ewing is accused of stealing clothes from a barber shop where he was employed in Faribault. He has worked in a barber shop in this city. Sheriff Geiger will take Ewing to Faribault tonight.

Dr. Samuel Gillespie and a bulldog which came alive through the wreck. The dog was badly burned attempting to pull Dr. Gillespie from beneath the blazing car. From the fact that he lived with his uncle, Dr. S. B. Patterson, while in La Crosse, Dr. Gillespie was familiarly known to La Crosse people as "Sam Patterson." Dr. Gillespie's funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the residence of his uncle, Dr. S. B. Patterson, 1506 Johnson street. Rev. Julius Gamm will officiate. Burial will take place in Oak Grove cemetery.

STORES TO CLOSE WEDNESDAY NOONS

Eight Prominent Merchants
in Agreement to Give Employes Half-Holiday During Summer Months

With the purpose of giving their employees an extra half holiday during the summer months, eight prominent merchants of the town town district have signed the following agreement:

"We, the undersigned merchants, agree to close our places of business Wednesday afternoons at 12 o'clock during July and August, beginning July 9th:

SCOTT-ROSE CO.,
WM. DOERFLINGER CO.,
J. A. BARTL CO.,
F. A. REIMAN,
J. J. POEHLING,
HATTIE L. JEFFERSON,
M. M. HART,
E. R. BARRON CO."

One of the merchants whose name is on the agreement said today that the idea was to procure an improvement in service. He said that the store owners had come to the conclusion that during the hot months they would be given better service if their employees were given a half holiday free in the middle of each week, in which to recruit their energies.

The idea was given a successful tryout in La Crosse two years ago.

HIGH KICKER KILLED

CHICAGO, July 2.—In a quarrel as to who could kick the highest, Eugene A. Brookman was stabbed to death by an unknown man today, in front of the saloon of Thomas F. Mulheran. Brookman and the other aspirant for high kicking honors, quarreled in Mulheran's saloon and started to fight after they were ejected. Two suspects are being held by the police.

Bloody Thumb Marks and Knife Only Clues to the Slayer of Well-
Dressed Woman

CHICAGO, July 2.—Bloody thumb marks on an iron door and a blood-smeared jack-knife are the clues by which the police hope to learn the identity of the man who assaulted and murdered an unidentified woman in an alley on West Madison street early today, less than four blocks from the Chicago and Northwestern station.

The body of the victim, a well-dressed woman of apparent refinement, lies in the morgue, the head nearly severed from the trunk. The police are searching lists of missing women in an effort to solve this second phase of the mystery.

The victim wore two rings, one evidently a wedding ring, and an inexpensive necklace. None of her jewelry was disturbed and the police are positive that robbery was not the motive of the crime.

MAHONEY'S BROTHER CALLED

Alderman P. W. Mahoney returned from Madison today, where he attended the funeral of his youngest brother, Charles, who died at the home of his mother last Saturday. The funeral was held yesterday. Six brothers and two nephews were the pallbearers. Charles Mahoney was 36 years of age and died of a nervous breakdown. He is survived by six brothers, three sisters and an aged mother.

GETTYSBURG TAKES SECOND DEATH TOLL

Five Veterans Succumb to the Heat and Many Are Prostrated at Army
Reunion

EXPECT MANY DEATHS BEFORE END

Army Surgeons Think that Three More Days Will Make Inroads Into Ranks

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 2.—Unless there is a decided drop in temperature, or this section is deluged by rain, the death toll at the union and confederate reunion now in progress here promises to be very large. The suffering is intense. Torrid heat and a high degree of humidity, coupled with the change in their usual habits of eating and drinking are causing dozens of the old soldiers to collapse and the hospital corps is already overworked, with three full days of the reunion still to come.

The brown army tents are veritable ovens. For two days now there has been practically no breeze and many of the veterans were completely worn out by the long hard trip to get here.

Today Military Day

This was Military day. The forces of the north and the south are being specifically honored. In the big tent where all of the formal functions are held the veterans assembled to listen to praise of the heroism shown by the two armies. Eulogies of the north were sounded by Major General John R. Brooke of Pennsylvania, while those of the south were recorded by Sergeant John C. Scarborough of South Carolina and as a climax to the two efforts came the reading of the martyred Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Barry Bulkeley.

Yesterday's terrible heat which lasted well into the night, had taken heavy toll of the reserve strength of the old warriors. They did not respond as quickly to the bugle this morning, many preferring to go without their breakfasts to leaving the shelter of their tents and the hay-piled cots on which they were comfortably resting. There were fifty-three prostrations yesterday, which necessitated the removal of the victims to the General hospital and there were three times that number who received treatment and were taken to their tents to recover.

Only Five Dead

The remarkable thing thus far has been the small number of deaths. Only five have been reported to date, and it is pointed out that this is far below the average. With more than 50,000 men in camp, all over 68 years of age, the death rate, according to the law of averages, should be much higher. However, the surgeons in charge fear that as the camp draws to a close the figures will be increased.

It is because of this that orders have been issued that the saloons in Gettysburg be closed at 10:30 nightly. It was feared that the spirit of conviviality and comradeship would cause some of the old soldiers to indulge too freely and thus injure their health.

Many Leave

Many of them fearful of the scorching heat and others thoroughly satisfied with having seen their old comrades, the veterans are leaving the encampment grounds by the thousands this afternoon. Still others are anxious to get away before the rush starts at the end of the reunion.

Twenty-four hundred men left today on the Reading railroad, the Pennsylvania carried out 2,200 veterans to southern and eastern points while 700 went west. It is expected that fully 10,000 will leave tonight.

Although there was a repetition today of previous high records in temperature and humidity, the rate of prostrations among the old soldiers was considerably diminished and up to this afternoon only two additional deaths were recorded.

The sudden death of Landis L. Travers, 68, a union soldier of West-moor, Pa., brought the death total up to seven.

T. R. URGES WARSHIPS

NEWPORT, R. I., July 2.—Col. Roosevelt today dealt with senators and congressmen who oppose appropriations for at least two new battleships annually, in a speech before the progressive conference, arranged by the progressive national society. This was designated as "Navy day."

"Every senator or congressman, whatever his party, should be regarded as unfaithful to the public interest, as false to the country, if he fails heartily to support the program of providing every year for two battleships of the most efficient type and for whatever other vessels and munitions of war are necessary as accompaniments of these two battleships," Roosevelt declared.

Congressman Esch Re-

gineers

IMPROVE BLACK RIVER CHANNEL

Put Up to Petitioners;

Property Owners

A motorboat levee 1200 feet long, 200 feet wide, 12 feet above the high water mark and sloping to the water's edge and equipped with landing and dockage facilities will be built by the government at the mouth of the La Crosse river just north of Levee park. It is practically assured that the work will be done this summer. This is the information contained in a letter received by Congressman John J. Esch from Major C. Keller of the government corps of engineers, Rock Island, Ill. The department's decision to build the levee is the result of a petition sent to Congressman Esch by the Business Men's league of Onalaska, the North Side Progressive league and the La Crosse Motor Boat club. Congressman Esch has been working on the project for more than a month together with the proposed deepening of the Black River channel. Mr. Esch has been assured that part of the channel of Black River will be improved but the necessary machinery is not available this season so the work will probably be done next summer.

Up to Progressive League

In response to the request from the Progressive league that Hammond chute be closed Major Keller submits a suggestion made by Capt. W. A. Thompson, engineer in charge of this division of the government river work, that the Progressive league secure the permission of property owners who would be affected by the closing of Hammond Chute so as to release the United States from liabilities that may be incurred.

The building of the motorboat levee will require the removal of about 72,000 cubic yards of sand. This sand is available and will be dredged from the bar at the mouth of the La Crosse river. There is a resolution in the hands of the common council committees on bridges and finance, introduced by Alderman P. W. Mahoney calling for the building of a foot bridge from Levee park to the proposed motorboat landing. It is probable that this bridge will be built as soon as the proposed levee is completed.

The letters received by Congressman Esch reciting Major Keller and Capt. Thompson's views on the proposed levee and harbor and Black River channel work are given as follows:

Major Keller's Letter
Rock Island, Ill., June 26, 1913.
Honorable John J. Esch, M. C.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Esch:

1. I have your letter of June 19, accompanied by a petition representing the Business Men's league of Onalaska and the Progressive League of North La Crosse, requesting certain improvements in Black river.

2. Black river is not a stream, as yet, considered worthy of improvement by the government, but a few years ago the department permitted this office to do some dredging up as far as Onalaska, on the ground that that stretch of the river was a part of the harbor of La Crosse, for which funds can always be provided under the head of Maintenance.

3. I inclose a copy of a letter of Assistant Engineer W. A. Thompson in this connection, giving a statement of work that has been done and his opinion as to additional work. The work he mentions in paragraph two can be done by a dredge, with snag and dredge boat funds, which are always available, but there is no dipper dredge that can be spared this year—but this would be only a partial remedy.

4. In another letter, Mr. Thompson states that to dig a channel 200 feet wide and 4 1/2 feet deep at low water, from La Crosse to Onalaska, would require the removal of about 622,000 cubic yards of sand and mud and cost anywhere from $62,000 to perhaps double that amount, on account of difficulties not now known. Such expenditure does not appear warranted by law or by existing traffic conditions.

To Start Harbor Soon

5. As regards the motor boat harbor at mouth of La Crosse River mentioned in paragraph three of Mr. Thompson's letter, that work appears feasible, and if, on examination, which I will make at an early day,

JANE ADDAMS NOT WILLING CANDIDATE

Noted Suffrage Leader Says She Would Not Like to Run for Office of Mayor of Chicago

SURPRISED BY ILLINOIS ACTION

Asserts She Thought Wisconsin Would Give Women Vote Before the Prairie State

NEW YORK, July 2.—Miss Jane Addams, who arrived today from Europe, where she attended the International Woman's Suffrage convention in Budapest, declared she did not wish to be a candidate for mayor of Chicago in the coming election. She qualified her refusal, however.

As the liner Olympic came to her pier, Miss Addams explained to a United Press representative while she believes it would be unwise for her to accept a nomination even if thrust upon her.

"The fact that some of my friends have mentioned me as a possible candidate for mayor of Chicago," said Miss Addams, "is a great surprise to me, and it is hardly fair to expect me to answer at this time a flat question as to whether I would accept. It is against our principles to rush in for office-holding the moment we have received the vote. It would be very unwise for the women of Illinois to accept, or seek public office until they have had a few years experience as voters. At this time I should think I should refuse to be a candidate for any public office."

"It is a hypothetical question, but I repeat that even if, as the question suggests, I should be called and nominated against my wishes, I should refuse any nomination."

Miss Addams expressed herself as having been slightly surprised that Illinois had given women the vote and right to hold office, with a few exceptions. She declared it was a great victory for the cause and said the chief influence lay in the fact that a state as large as Illinois east of the Mississippi had decided in favor of equal suffrage. She had believed, she said, that Wisconsin would give women the vote before they got it in Illinois. Asked if the women of her state would vote as women voters, or would align themselves with the various political parties, Miss Addams said:

"We will not, as women voters remain segregated and vote merely as a woman's party, excepting on some moral and sociological questions that only the influence of women's votes will settle correctly."

POSTAL CLERKS AND CARRIERS TO BANQUET GUESTS AT MASONIC TEMPLE WHEN STATE CONVENTION COMES HERE

The big feature of the State Postal Clerks and Carriers associations' convention, which will be held in La Crosse July 14, will be a 6 o'clock banquet to be given at the Masonic temple. The convention will be attended by delegates from all over the state, and all of these will be present at the banquet.

To make the convention a success, local members of the two associations have been working hard for several months, perfecting details. The executive committee in charge of arrangements for the reception of the convention is headed by Chairman J. A. Snyder. S. J. Roden is vice-chairman, A. A. Gibson secretary, and C. P. Nonstad, treasurer. The other members are A. J. Schmidt, M. G. O'Keefe, W. C. Howard, E. C. Koops, W. J. Fladlien and O. J. Paulson.

The feast on the evening of the convention will be addressed by speakers who will discuss matters connected with the postal service.

FOURTH CLAIMS VICTIM

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Col., July 2.—The first Fourth of July fatality occurred here today. The explosion of a firecracker caused a runaway in North park, in which Stanley Chedsey, five, was killed, and Nathan Chedsey, 14, was severely injured.

who could blame him? He glowered at the back of a male person who had spoken to his girl in blue—that is, he glowered until he saw the man's face, then he hailed him with a smile that Tom Bennett never remembered having seen on Everly's face.

"You old scout!" cried Everly. "What are you doing up at this hour of the morning?"

"I admit it is a mistake," laughed Bennett, "and I am in a deuce of a hurry to get this express train. Miss Peggy Arnott, Mr. George Everly," he introduced the two in a second and scrambled quickly into his train.

"That was rather sudden—wasn't it?" remarked Peggy Arnott.

"Not any too sudden," said Everly, and watched the smile that had found its depths in Peggy's blue eyes.

SAYS MRS. EDDY IS RISING FROM THE DEAD

Mrs. August E. Stetson, who was thrown out from the Christian Science church by the directors in Boston, has announced herself in a new role. Maintaining that Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy is not dead, but "is rising to a final demonstration of her teaching that all is life," she insists that she was appointed head of the "branch church." She explains this by asserting that this is the spiritual side of the material church organization, and the members of the regular church will grow in spirituality till they can join the branch or spiritual church.

"Is the statement wholly correct that in your book you claim to be the spiritual head of the church?" "Throughout the columns of the book," said Mrs. Stetson, "I positively state that Mrs. Eddy is the head of her church, which means the entire body, comprising the members of her, the mother or universal church. She has not died, but is rising to a final demonstration of her teachings that all is life; there is no death, and is, as she has been, the spiritual head of the universal church. I have never ceased to follow the impersonal ideal once seemingly embodied in flesh. I remain steadfast in my convictions that I am the spiritual head of the branch church which she organized, and over which she placed me as spiritual head. I am responsible to God and to my leader for defending my position."

39 DROWN DURING LAST THIRTY DAYS

MILWAUKEE, July 2.—During the thirty days of June there were thirty-nine accidental deaths by drowning in Wisconsin, according to statistics compiled by the Sentinel.

On June 1 six drowned in Milwaukee and cities of the state; on June 15 five persons met death in the waters in and near Milwaukee; on June 23 there were six deaths in the state; on June 28 four were drowned near Cassville; on June 28 there were six drownings in the state. On several days the drownings were reported in pairs.

In accord with the eternal fitness of things, a man with narrow shoulders ought to wear a broadcloth coat.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

"BUTTON, BUTTON—"

By HARMONY WELLER

Copyright, 1912, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

A slow smile dawned in Everly's eyes. It always amused him to watch the people dashing madly past the ticket chopper and scrambling for the train that was even then pulling out of the station. Invariably the gate was slammed in their heated faces. "Why will they rush themselves into a fever over one train out of hundreds just like it?" was Everly's habitual mental comment as he leisurely purchased his ticket and even more leisurely dropped it into the ticket chopper and strolled along the elevated platform at the 110th street station.

Everly had long since admitted his preference for waiting that moment or two between trains to making that frantic dash and becoming heated and upset the first thing in the morning. Besides, he had an amusing assortment of oddments that he had picked up after these morning sprints. By going slowly he profited by their hurry. Nothing was worth stopping for so long as they caught that particular train, and Everly had picked up elevated tickets, fresh morning papers, a quarter or two, back combs and even a lady's belt. His most recent find was a more or less remarkable button, and even in his masculine ignorance regarding feminine attire Everly realized that it was one of those costly ornaments that make the entire trimming of a modish tailored suit.

Had Everly seen the girl who had lost the button he most probably would have returned it to her. As it was, he could only imagine a suit that was perhaps navy blue and which was suffering for the loss of a button. If the suit was imported there was slight chance of the owner being able to match the button.

However, Everly watched the feminine continent that made its way businessward each morning about 9 o'clock. There was just a chance that he might see a suit that boasted the mates of the one he had found. It became a habit with him to traverse the length of the platform and then the train looking for blue enamel buttons that were framed in dull silver.

It was just as the 9:10 express train was pulling into the station on morning in June that he saw her.

Her slim back was Everly's first vision down at the foot of her trim walking skirt lurked six blue buttons. They swung with the rhythm of her feet and Everly hurried along the platform and glanced at the remainder of an almost perfect whole.

Yes, her eyes were blue like the buttons, and her hair curled beneath a dainty blue hat. Everly liked every inch of the girl, and it was then that he decided not to give back the lost property—at least she should be made to see and long for it before getting it. But how? Everly racked his brain and followed the girl into the train. No longer did he look at general feminine attire. His attention was entirely claimed by the girl who always glanced down as if seeking in vain for something.

It irritated Everly to note how seldom her eyelashes unveiled the deep blue of her eyes. When he had found a seat opposite her it seemed as if she never would glance over at him. If that was to be the case he realized that his scheme would sink to failure.

He examined her suit carefully and, yes—there was a deficiency in buttons. Everly discovered that one sleeve contained three and the other but two buttons.

He smiled his slow amused smile and gave her credit for doing the best maneuvering possible. She had reasoned that she could not be seen on both sides at once by the same person.

While he smiled the girl looked up and across at him. From his face her eyes traveled down and opened wide as if she never would glance over at him. She gave an almost imperceptible start.

Her lovely imported button was adorning a strange man's coat.

Everly watched while seeming not to do so. She bit her lip in indecision, made an involuntary movement as if she would speak to him, then sank back in her seat. A mutinous expression dawned in her eyes. Evidently she felt powerless to claim her own property.

And because he could not refrain from gazing at her Everly opened his paper wide and tried to read. Always in his mind rang the words, "Button, button, I've got the button." He realized that his act was not particularly worthy, yet he also felt that if he returned the property there would be an end to the affair.

With a lingering look at Everly's determined face the girl got off the train at Fifty-third street. He watched her go and the world became a blank. Evidently she was a student of music and went daily to Carnegie, because her great music holder swung at her side.

Everly breathed more freely. There was every chance that with a little vigilance each morning on the elevated station he could see her frequently. After all, the world was a glorious place to live in.

Days and days passed and trains and trains passed and always Everly managed to see the girl in the blue suit. It was not a difficult maneuver, especially when, as Everly began to feel, the girl herself was a party to it. Late he had watched her eyes dart swiftly along the platform and meeting his own cease to roam. A smile had found its way into the depths of her eyes and her lips were wont to restrain themselves at the corners when Everly sank into the seat beside or across from her in the train. His unusual decoration had caught many an amused glance.

The morning that the same elevator carried them both up was a day of days. Everly stood so close to the girl that his sleeve brushed the blue buttons that were playing so important a part in the lives of them both. When they stepped from the elevator Everly drew in a deep breath of the perfume she exhaled, and if he felt slightly irresponsible

CONTRAST OF LATEST AMERICAN AND FRENCH BATHING SUITS

These photographs exhibit the latest in bathing suits for women of two countries—the United States and France. The white silk suit has come to the United States, but perhaps it will not be worn by every woman. In fact, white suits have been forbidden by the managers of some beaches along the Atlantic coast. But the one-piece suit is common at the best resorts in France and other places on the continent.

Daddy's Bedtime

Robbie Wasn't Asked to the Fairy Ball.

"What kind of a boy is he?" asked the queen.

JACK had been rather slow in doing an errand for his mother, and daddy had heard her speak to him about it.

When Jack and Evelyn came up for their story daddy pretended to be taking a nap, and he yawned until they thought he would never be able to have it finished before the bedtime hour.

"Once upon a time," daddy began, "there was a little chap named Robbie. Robbie had one very bad habit, but perhaps by the time I have finished my story you will know what it was."

"Robbie lived in a dear little house on the edge of the woods. Now, though Robbie did not know it, there were some lovely fairies living in that forest. Every midsummer night they held a splendid ball."

"And what mortal shall we ask to our ball this year?" the queen of the fairies said to her court one day.

"There is little Robbie, who lives in the vine covered cottage on the edge of the woods," one little fairy spoke up.

"This is well," the queen said after hearing different fairies tell what a nice, kind little boy Robbie was. "There is, however, the test which every mortal child asked to our midsummer ball must stand."

"First she sent Fairy Bluebell to Robbie's house. Robbie was eating his breakfast when the fairy got there."

"The fairy whispered into the ear of Robbie's mother, and she looked up from the sewing on which she was working."

"Run upstairs, Robbie, and bring down my scissors from the table in my room," she said.

"But Robbie poked so long over the breakfast that at last his mother had to go upstairs and get the scissors for herself."

"Fairy Bluebell went back to the fairy queen looking very sad."

"Then the queen sent Fairy Columbine, and the fairy whispered into the ear of Robbie's grandma, who had a toothache. Robbie's grandma wanted him to go to the drug store and get some medicine for her tooth, but Robbie waited until after supper, and then grandma's tooth was so bad she had to go to the dentist and have it pulled."

"When Fairy Columbine went back to the queen and told her that the queen said: 'I just won't have that boy at my ball. It's about as bad to be slow in obeying as to be downright disobedient.'"

"And so poor Robbie missed the fairy ball and all the lovely favors which are given out by the queen. And I'm sure if Robbie had known what he missed he would have started being promptly obedient right away."

DAILY RECORDS OF THE BRAIN
Some day a scientist is going to rig
up a device that a man can attach inside of his hat and that will record just what he thinks of during the day. When he gets home at night he will be able to examine the ticker tape and thus can pass in review all the thousand and one thoughts he had during the day.
With this device on the market new complications are bound to arrive in married life. Every wife will insist that her husband wear one and
on his return home will demand that she be allowed to examine the record. It is not hard to see that many men will have to go bareheaded most of the time, putting on their hats only
when they are able to hold their vagrant fancy down to a line of denatured thought that will pass the censor at home.
The dawn of the day when such a device is to be in common use is forecast by the fact that a late Harvard professor has willed his brains to the university authorities for the purpose of reading from them the thoughts that he had when living. It was the professor's theory that every thought is recorded in some crinkle
of the gray matter and that clever investigators by following all the lines could tell exactly what occupied
the man's mind during life. Of course,
he applied this theory only to brains
that have ceased to work, but in view of the wonderful advances of science, there is no reason to doubt that at a later date some genius is bound to patent a contrivance that will provide an automatic recording device for brains that are still on the job.
The device is not likely to be a commercial success. The average brain is a queer conglomeration of thoughts good and bad. It isn't at all a well behaved animal. It has no idea of law and order, discipline or propriety. Very often it couldn't be sent through the mails. In the end

the good may conquer the bad, but before the victory is won the bad usually puts up a stiff fight. Nobody,
not even our pastors or vice commissioners, would want their daily brain
records published in the newspapers.
A Milwaukee brewer is sixty-two inches around the waist, or perhaps it would be better to say around the waste.
LET'S BE FAIR WITH PRESIDENT WILSON
We cannot fully agree with the argument of a news item of Madison
date which appeared in this paper
yesterday, complaining of the lack
of system and expert information employed in the drafting of the Wilson tariff bill. That the administration
would like—by the power of public
opinion as interpreted by friendly
newspapers—to force Senator LaFollette to support the measure, is probably true, but so long as the papers
and friends of the administration are
conscientious in their conception of
the public intent, we see no wrong
in that; certainly the method is better than the barter and sale of former log-rolling days. We cannot approve of the adverse votes of Len-
root and Nelson (in the house) under the circumstances. Had they offered amendments, fought for them
vigorously as their protest against
the bill, and showed a preference for
the Wilson over the Aldrich law, we should have liked it better. By the terms of his campaign agreement
with the people it is up to the president to promptly revise the tariff
downward. We believe he is doing
his best. That his bill is imperfect
is doubtless true, but it cannot discriminate in favor of the consumer
enough to offset former and present
discriminations against the consumer—not in a thousand years. As for Senator La Follette, he may be trusted to take care of himself and do
public service in the amendments he
will undoubtedly offer. It will take
a verified copy of the congressional record to convince us that the senator has turned standpatter on a single schedule. His offering, our knowledge of the senator's familiarity with
the tariff problem convinces us, will tend to improve the Wilson bill. His work will tell, whether in this or a subsequent session. Reverting to the story under discussion, it may be observed that unfair criticism adds no
strength to debate.

The Summer Resort
I'm going to spend the summer
Right where I did last year.
The place lacked no convenience,
Conducive to good cheer.
I had there every comfort,
I did not lack for food,
The cooking was a marvel,
And everything was good.
The beds were soft and downy,
I did not lie awake.
The coffee was delicious,
Like mother used to make.
Nobody tried to string me
On prices for my board;
Mosquitoes didn't bite me,
No irate boarders roared.
I motored out quite often
At very slight expense,
I was quite close to tennis
And golfing was immense.
Yes, I will spend the summer
With no desire to roam,
Right where I spent it last year,
I'm going to stay at home.
No Good at School
Little George was 6 years old, and
the family was much interested in
having him start to school, but he
insisted that he was not going.
One day his grandmother said to
him: "George, you are going to school with sister this winter, aren't
you?"
"No, grandma, I'm not going to school at all. I can't read, nor I can't write, nor I can't sing, and I'd like to know what good I'd be at
school."—Woman's Home Compan-

Worst Cases.

Blood Disorders are Banished by
S. S. S.
A tiny pimple spreads to the side of
the face and often covers the cheeks
and bridge of the nose. It is very destructive to the glands of the skin. No
external treatments will overcome it,
as the cause of lupus is from impurities
in the blood supply. The only known
method of cure is to get the blood supply under the control of S. S. S., the famous blood specific. Its action is quite remarkable and has direct influence upon the network of small blood
vessels and glands in the skin.
From the fact that S. S. S. is purely
a botanical preparation, it is accepted
by the weakest stomach and has great
tonic influence in all the digestive organs. It is certainly a wonderful blood
medicine, and is prepared direct from
native materials gathered by the experts of the famous Swift Laboratory.
Not one drop of minerals or drugs is
used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S.
and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice and counsel upon any matter concerning the blood and skin, write to the Medical Department,

what you want. You want me to go
to work and help cinch this case.
Well, I won't. I'm out of that business, too. What I'm here for, Martin McGee—beyond the pleasure I
always took in your society"—here
Rosalie let her dimples play and
flash—"is to tell all I know or
saw, so's you won't be callin' me at
the inquest an' gettin' me a feature in the papers."
"How about this man North?"
asked the Inspector.
"Well, in the first place, I like
him," said Rosalie; "I like that
boy."
"You're no different from every
other lady that's looked into that
terrier face of his," responded Martin McGee, smiling heavily. "I've
been having his record trailed all
day. Seems he knows everybody,
except the swells, on his beat—the
two cops, the paper-boy, the bar-
tenders—he's strong there—the
bootblacks, the wops on the fruit
stand, the kike tailor, the cabmen,
the expressmen, and the postman,
even the chink laundrymen. He was
best man last week at the postman's
wedding, and they do say—every
one who knows him sticks to just
one thing—whatever he does, it
wasn't Tommy North. That may seem in his favor, but there's two
things against him; one—Martin
McGee lifted a heavy purple finger
—he does most of his sleeping between the hours of half past two
and half past seven in the morning;
and two—another purple finger
popped up to join the first—he
spends most of his extra money at
pool parlors, Austrian villages and
cabaret shows, where he has some reputation as a turkey trotter. For
a boy that just come down from
the country three years ago, I must
say he's been going some, and the
only wonder to me is that Tam-
many ain't got hold of him long
ago. Do you think he had anything
to do with it?"
"I ain't committin' myself as to
who done it—did it—I don't have
to think about that any more now.
I've stopped bein' a lady," said Ro-
salie, sweeping into digression.
"You'll never know the fight I had
with this grammar thing after talking for forty years just like I wanted to. Thank the lord, that's over.
Well, anyhow, I ain't committin'
myself. Looks like an alibi for Mr.
North when the landlady says he
come up the stairs only a minute
before he hollered, an' the doctor
says that this Hanks had been
dead two or three hours. Appeared
to me like he was just jarred out of a drunk, too. How about this Lawrence Wade or whatever his name
was—the man who called with the
bag? Got him?"
"He was arrested this morning in Boston."
"Skippin' that's bad. Has it occurred to you to investigate that
young man's athletic record?"

turned on her. Rosalie was always

dinary bits of knowledge.
"How did you know," inquired Inspector McGee, "that he was an athlete?"
Rosalie looked very grave. But
she answered his question by another.
"He wasn't a fencer?"
For answer, McGee picked up a
red-bound college annual from his
desk.
"We've been following him up,
you see." And in the tabulated records he pointed out one line,
"President fencing club, 1898-99."
"Looks bad," commented Rosalie.
"Why?"
"How would you stab a man if
you were stabbing in a hurry?"
asked Rosalie. "Try. Here's a pen-holder. The point of the pen is the point of the knife. Now!"
Inspector McGee grasped the pen-
holder so that the point protruded
from under his little finger. So
holding it, he made a downward
sweep through the air.
"Of course, that's how I'd go at
it," said McGee, "but a regular
knife man—"
"Exactly," interrupted Rosalie.
"And your knife would go in from
above, now wouldn't it? The wound
would point down. Now try it this way—" Rosalie arranged the weap-
on which is mightier than the
sword in such manner that the
point extended from under her
forefinger. "Or this"—now she
held the fencer's grip, the shaft,
lying obliquely along the palm, controlled and guided by the sensitive finger-points. "Now. He was stabbed in the heart, but from beneath. The wound pointed upward.
With your grip, you couldn't stab a
standing man upward, not if he let
you. With my grip, I couldn't stab
downward to save my life."
Martin McGee went into heavy
thought while he struggled for objections.
"Suppose he was lying down?"
he asked, at last.
"On the floor? Beggin' to be
stabbed?" jabbed Rosalie.
"Maybe he was stabbed in bed
and got out and died on the floor."
"And never made any disturbance or left any blood behind? Besides, the bed wasn't mussed at all.
It was just thrown back as though
he'd got up quiet and natural."
"You saw all that—in two minutes!" exclaimed McGee. "I never
could understand how you did it."
"If you'd spent your whole life,"
replied Rosalie, "sizin' up sitters
with past, present an' future in the
two minutes that you was fakin'
trance, you'd see things in a hurry,
too!"
"Well, how on earth did you
know that about fencers?"
"Easy as lyin' an' simple as
women," replied Rosalie. "I used to
room with a little actress that
fenced—the one I was havin' supper with last night. But now, Inspector, just to close things up, I'm
out of this case. I've given you all I know. Your police will be botherin'
my boarders a lot with questions;
an' so will the reporters. Just trust
me to steer that. You keep me out."
Martin McGee sighed.
"All right, Rosalie; but I'd like
your help. Still, I owe you lots of good turns, and the case don't look
as mysterious, after all. I guess it's that fellow Wade."
"Don't get too sudden with your guesses," replied Rosalie. "How does your dope go, anyway? Have
you looked up everybody that slept
in the house last night? I'd like to know pretty well if I'm cherishin' a
murderer in my midst."
"They're being looked up," replied McGee. "I've taken personal
charge of this, but the Captain
commanding the precinct detectives
is helping with the leg-work. The house wasn't entered. Wade, or
maybe North, did this—unless it
was an inside job. There's the land-
lady—well, it might have been her,
as well as anybody, of course—except she's a kind of an old fool. She
just don't look likely—"
Rosalie nodded.
"You can count her out."

in that; certainly the method is better than the barter and sale of former log-rolling days. We cannot
approve of the adverse votes of Len-
root and Nelson (in the house) under the circumstances. Had they offered amendments, fought for them
vigorously as their protest against
the bill, and showed a preference for
the Wilson over the Aldrich law, we
should have liked it better. By the
terms of his campaign agreement
with the people it is up to the president to promptly revise the tariff
downward. We believe he is doing
his best. That his bill is imperfect
is doubtless true, but it cannot dis-
criminate in favor of the consumer
enough to offset former and present
discriminations against the consumer—not in a thousand years. As for Senator La Follette, he may be trust-
ed to take care of himself and do
public service in the amendments he
will undoubtedly offer. It will take
a verified copy of the congressional
record to convince us that the senator has turned standpatter on a single schedule. His offering, our knowledge of the senator's familiarity with
the tariff problem convinces us, will
tend to improve the Wilson bill. His
work will tell, whether in this or a
subsequent session. Reverting to the
story under discussion, it may be ob-
served that unfair criticism adds no
strength to debate.

DIVER IS DROWNED
MARINETTE, Wis., July 2.—
While swimming in the Menomonee

years old, was drowned. He made a dive from a boom stick and failed to come up. Milbert Burbey, a compan-

The Summer Resort
I'm going to spend the summer
Right where I did last year.
The place lacked no convenience,
Conducive to good cheer.
I had there every comfort,
I did not lack for food,
The cooking was a marvel,
And everything was good.
The beds were soft and downy,
I did not lie awake.
The coffee was delicious,
Like mother used to make.
Nobody tried to string me
On prices for my board;
Mosquitoes didn't bite me,
No irate boarders roared.
I motored out quite often
At very slight expense,
I was quite close to tennis
And golfing was immense.
Yes, I will spend the summer
With no desire to roam,
Right where I spent it last year,
I'm going to stay at home.
No Good at School
Little George was 6 years old, and
the family was much interested in
having him start to school, but he
insisted that he was not going.
One day his grandmother said to
him: "George, you are going to
school with sister this winter, aren't
you?"
"No, grandma, I'm not going to school at all. I can't read, nor I can't write, nor I can't sing, and I'd
like to know what good I'd be at
school."—Woman's Home Compan-

A tiny pimple spreads to the side of
the face and often covers the cheeks
and bridge of the nose. It is very destructive to the glands of the skin. No
external treatments will overcome it,
as the cause of lupus is from impurities
in the blood supply. The only known
method of cure is to get the blood supply under the control of S. S. S., the famous blood specific. Its action is
quite remarkable and has direct influence upon the network of small blood
vessels and glands in the skin.
From the fact that S. S. S. is purely
a botanical preparation, it is accepted
by the weakest stomach and has great
tonic influence in all the digestive organs. It is certainly a wonderful blood
medicine, and is prepared direct from
native materials gathered by the experts of the famous Swift Laboratory.
Not one drop of minerals or drugs is
used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S.
and insist upon having it. And if you

"Gee!" ejaculated Martin Mc-Gee. "I can use you."
"Yes, you can," interrupted Rosalie, "but you won't. I know what you want. You want me to go
to work and help cinch this case.
Well, I won't. I'm out of that business, too. What I'm here for, Martin McGee—beyond the pleasure I
always took in your society"—here
Rosalie let her dimples play and
flash—"is to tell all I know or
saw, so's you won't be callin' me at
the inquest an' gettin' me a feature in the papers."
"How about this man North?"
asked the Inspector.
"Well, in the first place, I like
him," said Rosalie; "I like that
boy."
"You're no different from every
other lady that's looked into that
terrier face of his," responded Martin McGee, smiling heavily. "I've
been having his record trailed all
day. Seems he knows everybody,
except the swells, on his beat—the
two cops, the paper-boy, the bar-
tenders—he's strong there—the
bootblacks, the wops on the fruit
stand, the kike tailor, the cabmen,
the expressmen, and the postman,
even the chink laundrymen. He was
best man last week at the postman's
wedding, and they do say—every
one who knows him sticks to just
one thing—whatever he does, it
wasn't Tommy North. That may
seem in his favor, but there's two
things against him; one—Martin
McGee lifted a heavy purple finger
—he does most of his sleeping between the hours of half past two
and half past seven in the morning;
and two—another purple finger
popped up to join the first—he
spends most of his extra money at
pool parlors, Austrian villages and
cabaret shows, where he has some
reputation as a turkey trotter. For
a boy that just come down from
the country three years ago, I must
say he's been going some, and the
only wonder to me is that Tam-
many ain't got hold of him long
ago. Do you think he had anything
to do with it?"
"I ain't committin' myself as to
who done it—did it—I don't have
to think about that any more now.
I've stopped bein' a lady," said Ro-
salie, sweeping into digression.
"You'll never know the fight I had
with this grammar thing after talk-
ing for forty years just like I wanted to. Thank the lord, that's over.
Well, anyhow, I ain't committin'
myself. Looks like an alibi for Mr.
North when the landlady says he
come up the stairs only a minute
before he hollered, an' the doctor
says that this Hanks had been
dead two or three hours. Appeared
to me like he was just jarred out of
a drunk, too. How about this Lawrence Wade or whatever his name
was—the man who called with the
bag? Got him?"
"He was arrested this morning in Boston."
"Skippin' that's bad. Has it occurred to you to investigate that
young man's athletic record?"
Inspector McGee jumped and turned on her. Rosalie was always letting slip some of these extraordinary bits of knowledge.

"How did you know," inquired Inspector McGee, "that he was an
athlete?"
Rosalie looked very grave. But
she answered his question by an-
other.
"He wasn't a fencer?"
For answer, McGee picked up a
red-bound college annual from his
desk.
"We've been following him up,
you see." And in the tabulated records he pointed out one line,
"President fencing club, 1898-99."
"Looks bad," commented Rosalie.
"Why?"
"How would you stab a man if
you were stabbing in a hurry?"
asked Rosalie. "Try. Here's a pen-
holder. The point of the pen is the point of the knife. Now!"
Inspector McGee grasped the pen-
holder so that the point protruded
from under his little finger. So
holding it, he made a downward
sweep through the air.
"Of course, that's how I'd go at
it," said McGee, "but a regular
knife man—"
"Exactly," interrupted Rosalie.
"And your knife would go in from
above, now wouldn't it? The wound
would point down. Now try it this
way—" Rosalie arranged the weap-
on which is mightier than the
sword in such manner that the
point extended from under her
forefinger. "Or this"—now she
held the fencer's grip, the shaft,
lying obliquely along the palm, controlled and guided by the sensitive finger-points. "Now. He was
stabbed in the heart, but from beneath. The wound pointed upward.
With your grip, you couldn't stab a
standing man upward, not if he let
you. With my grip, I couldn't stab
downward to save my life."
Martin McGee went into heavy
thought while he struggled for ob-
jections.
"Suppose he was lying down?"
he asked, at last.
"On the floor? Beggin' to be
stabbed?" jabbed Rosalie.
"Maybe he was stabbed in bed
and got out and died on the floor."
"And never made any disturbance or left any blood behind? Besides, the bed wasn't mussed at all.
It was just thrown back as though
he'd got up quiet and natural."
"You saw all that—in two minutes!" exclaimed McGee. "I never
could understand how you did it."
"If you'd spent your whole life,"
replied Rosalie, "sizin' up sitters
with past, present an' future in the
two minutes that you was fakin'
trance, you'd see things in a hurry,
too!"
"Well, how on earth did you
know that about fencers?"
"Easy as lyin' an' simple as
women," replied Rosalie. "I used to
room with a little actress that
fenced—the one I was havin' sup-
per with last night. But now, Inspector, just to close things up, I'm
out of this case. I've given you all I know. Your police will be botherin'
my boarders a lot with questions;
an' so will the reporters. Just trust
me to steer that. You keep me out."
Martin McGee sighed.
"All right, Rosalie; but I'd like
your help. Still, I owe you lots of
good turns, and the case don't look
as mysterious, after all. I guess it's
that fellow Wade."
"Don't get too sudden with your
guesses," replied Rosalie. "How
does your dope go, anyway? Have
you looked up everybody that slept
in the house last night? I'd like to know pretty well if I'm cherishin' a
murderer in my midst."
"They're being looked up," replied McGee. "I've taken personal
charge of this, but the Captain
commanding the precinct detectives
is helping with the leg-work. The
house wasn't entered. Wade, or
maybe North, did this—unless it
was an inside job. There's the land-
lady—well, it might have been her,
as well as anybody, of course—except she's a kind of an old fool. She
just don't look likely—"
Rosalie nodded.
"You can count her out."

of system and expert information em-

would like—by the power of public
opinion as interpreted by friendly
newspapers—to force Senator LaFol-

ably true, but so long as the papers
and friends of the administration are
conscientious in their conception of
the public intent, we see no wrong
in that; certainly the method is bet-

HORDE OF TRAMPS DESERT TRAIN HERE

That La Crosse is a favorite stopping place for the horde of tramps that infest the northwest was proved last night when nearly one hundred and fifty of them refused to go further than Grand Crossing on the train that brought them from Chicago.

At 3:45 this morning a passenger rolled into Grand Crossing on the Burlington carrying a consignment of laborers for the double track work at Genoa, and to the consternation of the conductor who had them in charge, they sauntered out of the coaches. A train was waiting on a side track at Grand Crossing to take them to Genoa. Six of them went. Night patrolmen from No. 2 and No. 4 stations were rushed to the depot. They were unable to send them out of town, and could only see that they were peaceable. One by one they left the city this morning by devious ways.

LINEN SHOWER

Misses Julia and Esther Noem entertained at a linen shower Saturday evening in honor of their cousin, Miss Clara Bakke, who is soon to become a bride. The decorations were elaborate. Red and white pervaded the color scheme. Red hearts were scattered on the table with a vase of American beauties in the center. Supper was served at 10 o'clock following which the bride-elect was presented with many useful and beautiful gifts. Music and games were participated in during the evening. Covers were laid for twelve.

FORESTERS ELECT BURDICK TREASURER

At a meeting of the United Order of Foresters held Monday night in the Rose Street Union hall, Solomon Burdick was elected treasurer of the order in this city. Joseph Druback was elected financial secretary. Mr. Burdick has recently returned from Madison where the state convention of the High Court was held. At the meeting Monday night he gave an address on the good condition of the order that was reported at the convention throughout the state.

BISHOP DIES ON ANNIVERSARY EVE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 2.—Bishop John Janssen of the Catholic diocese of Belleville, Ill., died at the Episcopal residence there this morning, after an illness which dated from April 24 last, the day before he had arranged to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his consecration as a bishop. He was 78 years old.

The aged prelate's death followed a period of unconsciousness into which he lapsed at 5 a. m., immediately after the last sacraments of the church were administered to him by Rev. J. H. Schlarmann, chancellor of the diocese.

Bishop Janssen's body will lie in state in St. Peter's cathedral, Belleville, which is being rebuilt at a cost of $300,000 following the fire which destroyed the structure a year ago. In erecting the new edifice a vault was built under the altar, in which the prelate's body will be interred.

IT MAY BE UNBEARABLY HOT IN CAPITAL, BUT CABINET WOMEN WON'T BELIEVE IT

Mrs. W. J. Bryan (top left), Mrs. Josephus Daniels (bottom left) and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall.

WASHINGTON.—It may be, probably is, unbearable hot in Washington, but there are a few cabinet women and others who will have to be shown. One of the others is Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president, who hasn't any idea of leaving Washington for the hot months. She would rather be with her husband here than alone at the sea shore or any other place.

Mrs. Bryan, wife of the secretary of state, is also determined to remain by her husband's side in Washington.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy, is another member of the cabinet set who has not left Washington.

The only other cabinet family yet remaining in Washington is that of the secretary of the interior. Owing to ill health Mrs. Lane has been very quiet since summer began.

TROUT FINGERLINGS SHIPPED

Ten thousand brook trout fingerlings were shipped to the Rod and Gun club of Cashton for planting in the streams in the vicinity of that town according to a notice received by Congressman John J. Esch from the U. S. hatcheries at Manchester, Iowa, today.

Mr. Esch was also notified that a shipment of 15,000 fingerlings had been made to the Tomah sportsmen's association and several smaller shipments to other towns in this district.

In accord with the eternal fitness of things, a man with narrow shoulders ought to wear a broadcloth coat.

MAE SULLIVAN WANTS $225,000 FROM SON OF HOE

Miss Mae A. Sullivan, a young woman of New York, wants $225,000 of the fortune of many millions left by R. Hoe, the builder of newspaper presses. She has begun suit against Arthur I. Hoe, son of the manufacturer, alleging that he promised to marry her, but later confessed that he was married and could not keep his promise. The young woman says in her complaint that Hoe paid her expenses in costly hotels for some time, and one day bought her $38,000 worth of jewelry. An automobile was one of the least of his expenditures for her.

Both were bound over to the grand jury and held in $1,000 bail.

GHETTO BOSS IS DEAD

"MANNY" ABRAHAMS OF CHICAGO COLLAPSES AFTER A SPEECH BEFORE THE CITY COUNCIL

CHICAGO, July 2.—Coroner Hoffman held an inquest today over the body of Alderman "Manny" Abrahams, boss of the Ghetto, and a figure in Chicago and Illinois politics for a number of years, who died late yesterday after suddenly collapsing while he was making a speech before a council committee.

"Manny" made an eloquent plea to have eliminated from a city ordinance the provision that prohibits peddlers and hucksters from crying their wares. A score of peddlers, his constituents in the Ghetto district, crowded around the "boss" to congratulate him, when he fell unconscious.

"Manny" was a saloon keeper who became alderman and then ruler of the Twentieth ward. He gained more than local prominence when he acted as bell wether of the assembly that elected William Lorimer to the United States senate.

FRENCH AND BELGIAN CAPITAL TO EXPEND MILLIONS ON COAL FIELD IN COLORADO

DENVER, Col., July 2.—A deal whereby French and Belgian capital will finance the development of 30,000 acres of the richest coal lands of Routt county and the construction of a 210 mile railroad from Hayden, Col., to Caspar, Wyo., to make a market for Colorado fuel, will be consummated in Denver within the next few days.

With the arrival in Denver of Camille Perin, managing director of the Societe Generale des Charbonnages of Brussels; W. J. HONORS MEMORY OF TOM PAINE

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 2.—New Rochelle has done something unusual, to say the least, in erecting a statue to Tom Paine, one of the heroes of the American revolution. Time was when the mention of his name aroused the clergy, and they would not listen to the story of his fight for freedom 130 years ago. But the anniversary of the settlement of the Huguenots in New Rochelle has been celebrated by the town, and as Tom Paine made it his home for many years he was included.

MARQUIS SETTLES SUIT FOR $50,000

Actress's Breach of Promise Case Against English Noble Dropped; Letters Read in Court

LONDON, July 2.—Society spectators in the King's bench court got a thrill today when Sir Edward Carson, counsel for the actress, Daisy Markham, in private life Violet Moss, announced that the Marquis of Northampton had agreed to pay his client $50,000 to settle her breach of promise suit. The plaintiff therefore desired to withdraw the action. Justice Bucknell made the order.

In explanation of the settlement, the lawyer read the last letter that the Marquis, then Earl Compton, wrote to the actress. It was so pathetic that it brought tears to many eyes in the courtroom. During the reading the marquis sat with his head bowed, flushing painfully and nervously moving his hands.

In contrast to his demeanor was that of Miss Markham, who, attired in a rich gown with a high black picture hat and nodding plumes, sat cool, cheerful and smiling near her lawyer.

The letter said that the marquis still loved the actress and always would regard her as his ideal, but his father had convinced him that their set would not receive her and marriage would only make her life miserable.

HOUSE INDIGNANT OVER ACCUSATION

Representatives Hold Angry Pow-wow Defending Investigation of Mulhall Charges

BRAND STATEMENT "WICKED LIE"

Congressmen Insist that They Have Not Been "Reached" by Manufacturers' Ass'n

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The house held an indignation meeting today, a score or more members vehemently asserting that the charge of Colonel M. M. Mulhall that he had been able to "reach" members and influence their votes on legislation for the National Association of Manufacturers, was a "wicked lie."

The debate was precipitated by three resolutions introduced by Representatives Neeley of Kansas, Nolan of California, and Sherley of Kentucky, demanding investigation of the charges.

Representative Henry of the rules committee insisted that all such resolutions go to his committee, asserting that it behooved the house to take cognizance of charges reflecting not alone on the members whose names were dragged into the Mulhall narrative, but upon the house as a whole.

Sherley vigorously denied ever being influenced by Mulhall. "A public man must be jealous of his honor and I cannot let this matter pass," he asserted.

By a vote of 67 to 36 the house today referred to the rules committee all resolutions calling for a complete investigation of the lobby charges of Colonel M. M. Mulhall of Baltimore. The committee was instructed to report out an entirely new resolution on Saturday which will provide for a full and complete investigation by the house, independent of the senate, of every phase of the Mulhall charges. It was said by leaders that the resolution will be speedily passed and that the house inquiry will commence at once.

ACROBAT CLERK IS FINED FOR CARDS

William J. Wilberding, clerk at the Cameron Hotel, was fined $15 and costs by Judge John Brindley in county court today after pleading guilty to having obscene postal cards in his possession. Wilberding declared that he had bought the cards from a news agent on a train at 6:30 in the morning and had gone to bed at 7:30 and was arrested when he got up at noon. He said that he had not offered the cards for sale. He was arrested on another charge of stealing a ring but there was no evidence of his guilt. The cards were found in his clothes and he was taken to court on the charge of carrying obscene cards.

Wilberding, who is an acrobat by profession, was working at the Cameron House to pay expenses during the closed theatrical season and had just been paid his month's wages, $20. His fine and costs amounted to $18.50. He has a wife living with her parents on a farm near Caledonia.

The entertainment for the evening contained many surprises, as it included vocal selections by Miss Cecelia Volz, soprano, of St. Mary's church; Mr. John Utermoehl, secretary of the board of trade, accompanied by Mr. Earl Richmond of the Leader-Press.

Arrangements are being made to hold the annual excursion on Thursday, August 25.

JULIO MADERO IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Two Brothers of Former President of Mexico Attacked in San Antonio Resort

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 2.—Private dispatches received here today from San Antonio state that Raoul and Julio Madero, brothers of the slain president of Mexico, Francisco I. Madero, were attacked in a resort in the Texas city Monday night and that Julio, whose skull is fractured, is dying. The other brother was seriously injured. The Maderos were attacked by four soldiers who are charged with being agents of the Huerta faction. The brothers had come this way to join the revolutionists and are said to have spent the last three months in assembling arms and ammunition and making other plans of benefit to Carranza's forces. It is said here that the two brothers were followed to New Orleans and from there to San Antonio, where their "shadows" picked a fuss with them.

BROKER ADMITS HE IMPERSONATED REPRESENTATIVES

Palmer was just then much in the public eye and prominent in the administration.

Lamar related the first unsuccessful effort of President Roosevelt to end the 1901 and 1902 Pennsylvania coal strike. Following this, he said, Roosevelt asked Lauterbach to arrange a conference with Governor Odell of New York, Senator Platt and Senators Quay and Penrose of Pennsylvania.

After that, he said, the strike was settled. Odell then threatened to revoke the charters of the coal carrying roads and Senator Quay threatened to force the Pennsylvania legislature at a special session to acquire the coal mines by right of eminent domain.

"After this," the witness added, "Morgan told me that he was criticised for letting me come to his office. Then the Morgan interests enmity to Lauterbach became as overt as that of other interests.

"I resolved to find out about it and I know Ledyard could tell me." Thinking he was talking to Palmer, the witness said Ledyard told him over the telephone what a black-maller Lamar was. "He said he had started the opposition to Lauterbach and told me his opinion of myself, thinking I was Palmer. I realized at once that Ledyard had fallen into an error and knew that, acting as Palmer, I could force him to do anything I desired. So I told him to call Lauterbach and let him explain everything.

"Lauterbach then made the famous visit." Lamar said that in all his telephonic conversations he was actuated solely by a desire to help Lauterbach. "If Lauterbach could bring the Morgan interests into harmony with the democracy it would have been a great feather in his cap," he explained. "I saw that the proposed Juggle of the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, and the Pennsylvania was a farce," Lamar continued. "I realized that it would rouse indignation country wide. I say it now. Here is a government conferring with a great concern over a dissolution. The government is not sure. It doubts the law. The attorney general sends an office boy, A. G. Carroll Todd, to St. Paul to conduct this great battle and they butcher this booby in five minutes, I think. And they gave this Todd the title of special prosecutor."

Lamar said that the attorney general had been "derelict in his duty," and that if the Union Pacific had had Lauterbach as counsel they would have secured "a plan that would have been advantageous to everyone concerned."

GOVERNMENT WILL BUILD LEVEE FOR LA CROSSE RIVER

It appears to me proper, I can, unless low water in the Mississippi river prevents, very soon put a suction dredge at work on it.

6. On account of the small flow in Black river at low water, it being robbed of about three-fourths of its water by Hammond chute, which is today the real mouth of Black river, any extensive work between La Crosse and Onalaska would hardly be justified. If, however, Hammond chute could be closed, there would be sufficient water to work with, both as regards sanitation and navigation. While depriving the Mississippi of Black river water not do any harm, there might be many private and local interests to be considered before its closure could be safely, as regards damages, carried out.

7. Nor is there any warrant for this office doing such work for the benefit of a stream which has not as yet been declared navigable by congress. Considered, however, as a part of La Crosse harbor, such work must have at least the sanction of the war department.

8. As soon as all the facts are at hand, an effort will be made to secure authority for the dredging needed to make the launch harbor.

Very respectfully,
Major, Corps of Engineers.
Capt. Thompson's Letter
La Crosse, Wis., June 24, 1913.

Major C. Keller:
1. I have the honor to return herein a petition, dated June 11, 1913, from representatives of the Progressive League of North La Crosse, requesting certain work in Black river, and the letter of Hon. John J. Esch, dated June 19, 1913, commenting on the petition

2. In 1909 the government, by means of a dipper dredge, tore a great many cribs apart, and, so far as was convenient at that time, removed all the rock it possibly could. This work was done at a comparatively high stage of water. When the river fell there was quite a good deal of loose rock scattered along this river, much of it was far removed from any of the cribs that were dug out. It would be a very good idea if these patches of rock be located most carefully during low stages and then have a dipper dredge remove them whenever it is possible to get such a dredge in this part of the river. I think such work could be done at an expense of about $2,500.

3. Regarding Mr. Esch's remarks about the construction of a landing for motorboats north of La Crosse river, I agree with him. I think that is of much more interest to citizens of La Crosse at the present time than removing the rock from the channel between La Crosse and Onalaska. As it is now, launches are tied up all along the regular steamboat landing places here at La Crosse. They are liable to be smashed whenever a steamboat goes by and they are certainly a great nuisance. By getting them up in this place in Black river they will be out of the way, but of course, the principal thing in making this landing it is necessary to procure six feet in Black river harbor. It makes a very convenient place to deposit material from the bar near the mouth of Black river and I would again recommend that this work be done at as early a date as possible, but not to interfere with any work the dredge may have in the river channel proper.

For County Engineer

4. Regarding Mr. Esch's suggestion that these people be requested to have a survey made of the Black river near Lytle, showing openings leading into Hammond chute and indicating where these people want the dams built. That is a survey for the county engineer to make, it would seem to me. It is a fact that more than three-fourths of the Black river water is emptied into the Mississippi river through Hammond chute. Hammond chute was closed off many years ago by the Black River Improvement company, a company made up of different lumbermen. It was for the purpose of floating logs down Black river to La Crosse. Recently those dams have all gone out and, as Mr. Esch says, more than three-fourths of the water of Black river is carried away from the outlet near La Crosse. Another thing, if you see your way clear of doing any work to stop this diversion of water through Hammond chute, I would recommend that the North La Crosse Progressive league get permission from the property owners that would be affected to have the work done and release the United States from any liability for any damage.

YESTERDAY'S WORK IN THE LEGISLATURE

MADISON, Wis., July 2.—The Hedding bill which came back from the senate with an amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor at any time in the buildings in which boxing matches are held was concurred in by the assembly yesterday morning 62 to 3. The amendment from the senate to the Walsh plumbing bill was concurred in. An amendment to the Mahon bill prohibiting the use of cars of wood structure between the locomotive and steel made cars was concurred in. These three bills now go to the governor.

The Scott bill providing for the licensing of insurance companies was concurred in.

The Whiteside motion to reconsider the vote by which 5758 was concurred in was lost. This bill makes inheritance tax operative upon all real property transferred by a testator within six years of his death.

The sharp bill providing for the employment with compensation for prisoners in the penal and reformatory institutions of the state, and the Sawyer bill providing for the experimental employment of state convicts in road construction were both ordered engrossed.

The Hinkel bill which proposed to permit a candidate for office to be nominated on different tickets was indefinitely postponed.

Senator Teasdale's bill which provides for a short course in agriculture and domestic science in high schools, was ordered to a third reading and then under suspension of the rules was concurred in.

The senate had summarily slaughtered an assembly bill appropriating $15,000 for a representation of Wisconsin products at the national exposition in Christiania in 1914, a few weeks ago, and so when a senate bill appropriating $7,500 for the same purpose came up in the assembly this morning it was indefinitely postponed.

Wisconsin joined the list of states that have taken steps to provide rules for a minimum wage for women and minors when the assembly last night passed the bill by Assemblyman Mahon to this effect. It now goes to the senate for concurrence. Unlike the administration of most such laws elsewhere, the Wisconsin bill places it in the state industrial commission, which shall determine and fix the minimum wage for given lines of industry. The vote on passage was 57 to 7.

Another bill by Mr. Mahon which provides for a legislative investigation of the subject of occupational diseases and sickness insurance. The vote was 35 to 30.

The Peavey bill, as amended, providing for a reorganization of the state board of health passed the assembly by a vote of 35 to 30. The bill provides that the state may be divided into five divisions, over each of which shall be a deputy state health officer. The secretary of the board shall be known as the state health officer. The board is authorized to establish the following bureaus: Vital statistics, sanitary inspection and sanitary engineering, tuberculosis and contagious diseases, and public information and education.

The assembly concurred in the Teasdale bill appropriating $20,000 for state aid to rural schools maintaining a first and a second grade, and in a finance committee bill appropriating $25,000 for a geological and natural history survey of lands in northern Wisconsin to determine their deposit of mineral resources.

The Peavey bill providing for the establishment of a state soils laboratory at the state agricultural college and appropriating $2,000 passed. The assembly killed the bill by Senator Biehler substituting the Australian ballot for the caucus system of nominating candidates for town and village officers. The bill was opposed by Assemblyman Judson Hall, who declared it was growing more unpopular with rural voters every day. The bill had already passed the senate and had been ordered engrossed and sent to a third reading in the assembly, and its defeat in the lower house came at the last stage in its legislative career. The vote was 35 to 30.

WISCONSIN BOARD TO AID VALUING

MADISON, Wis., July 2.—The Wisconsin railroad commission will present its statistics as to valuation of railroads to the interstate commerce commission at Washington, to assist in the valuation of the roads of the United States, which is undertaken under the La Follette bill recently enacted.

Commissioner Halford Erickson last week attended a meeting at Chicago of railroad commissioners of various states. Practically all the states will offer data. Clifford Thorne, head of the Iowa commission, is chairman of a committee of fifteen state commissioners which was selected to present data and to confer with the interstate commerce commission on the subject.

It was Senator LaFollette's wish that data of this kind be presented by the state commissions, and that members of these bodies appear before the interstate commerce commission as the representatives of the states and the people in the fixing of the valuations by the national board.

They caused her to lose much sleep and she was constantly tormented by severe itching and burning."

"I tried several well-known remedies, but got no relief until I got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which did so much good that I got a large quantity that cured her in ten days after she had been affected for two months." (Signed) Mrs. Edith Schwartz, Feb. 28, 1913.

U. S. TO REGULATE SHOOTING SEASONS

New Rules Go Into Effect October 1, 1913; Northern and Southern Zones

SWEEPING ACTION IS TAKEN

Laws Take Precedence of Existing State Statutes; for Protection of Wild Life

The eagerly-awaited regulations of the United States department of agriculture, bureau of biological survey, fixing the seasons in which the shooting of migratory birds is allowed, authorized under the recently enacted Weeks-McLean migratory bird law, have just been made public by the department. They are effective as of October 1, 1913.

In view of the wide-spread interest in this matter, not only on the part of sportsmen but of lovers of wild life generally, the American Game Protective and Propagation association, which was active in the movement for the enactment of the Weeks-McLean law, has summarized the most important points involved in these regulations as follows:

Northern and Southern Zones
Generally speaking, the country is divided into two zones, northern and southern, the dividing line running wholly or in part north of latitude 40 degrees and the Ohio river.

The twenty-five states included in the northern zone comprise Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The twenty-three states included in the southern zone are Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah.

The shooting season fixed for these two zones varies according to the four classifications of migratory birds that have been made, as will be seen later. The zones thus established take the place of fifty similar districts now existing under the statutes of the several states.

Summary of New Regulations
By way of summarization the following statements may be made:

1. Exceptions have been made in both zones for numerous reasons, but in most cases the closed seasons take the average of the existing laws of the states in the particular zones in which they are located.

2. There has been more cutting down on the closing than the opening dates of the shooting seasons as they now exist.

3. In most cases three months of open shooting are allowed for water fowl and in some cases as much as three and one-half months.

4. Spring shooting is absolutely prohibited.

5. Shooting of migratory birds between sunset and sunrise is likewise prohibited.

6. In no case will there be less than thirty days when birds may be shot during the period of their greatest abundance.

When Shooting is Permitted
Birds that may be shot are divided by the new regulations into four classes. These, and the open seasons allowed on them, follow:

1. Water fowl, northern zone, Sept. 1 to Dec. 15; southern zone, Oct. 1 to Jan. 15.

2. Rail, northern zone, Sept. 1 to Dec. 1; southern zone, Sept. 1 to Dec. 1.

3. Woodcock, northern zone, Oct. 1 to Dec. 1; southern zone, Nov. 1 to Jan. 1.

4. Shore birds, northern zone, Sept. 1 to Dec. 16; southern zone, Sept. 1 to Dec. 15.

No shooting whatever is allowed of cranes, or the columbidæ-doves, pigeons, etc.

A closed season until September 1, 1913 is established for band-tailed pigeons, little brown, sandhill and whooping cranes, swans, curlew, all shore birds except black breasted and golden plover, Wilson or jack snipe, wood duck, greater and lesser yellow legs.

Wood duck in addition are given a closed season to September 1, 1913 in the following states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Insectivorous birds, including robins, larks, etc., are protected at all times in all states and similar protection is given the smaller shore birds and other species which have been greatly reduced in number.

Limited Shooting on Great Rivers

A novel and important feature is the prohibition of hunting on the great rivers of the country except during November and December. Prohibited territory are designated by the regulations in this instance as follows:

1. Mississippi river from New Orleans to Minneapolis.

2. Ohio river from its mouth to Pittsburg.

3. Missouri river between its mouth and Bismarck, North Dakota.

Under the provisions of the Weeks-McLean law three months are given from the time these regulations are made public until they are presented to the president for approval and are finally adopted. It is also provided that public hearings may be had if

History Making Action

The regulations outlined above constitute beyond a doubt the most sweeping action ever taken in the country's history towards the protection of its wild life. They, of course, take absolute precedence of all existing statutes in the several states with which they come in conflict. That they will be of the greatest interest to the 25,000,000 or more of the country's population who are directly or indirectly concerned with the subject to which they pertain is certain. It is felt that on the whole the underlying principles are sound and well adapted to an urgent need. Wise discrimination for the most part seems to have been made in dealing with species that are relatively abundant and those that are not holding their own under existing regulations and there is evident intent of giving a square deal to all sections of the country.

A special committee of three from the bureau of biological survey drafted the regulations outlined above. Its members are T. S. Palmer, A. K.

Fisher and W. W. Cooke. The department of agriculture has issued two pamphlets on the subject, one containing the regulations themselves and the second an explanation of them. These are numbered 92 and 93, respectively.

The regulations outlined above are an effective contradiction to the rumor, wide-spread in the northwestern states, to the effect that the Weeks-McLean law prohibits the shooting at any time of ducks and other wild fowl.

You may have observed that the longer the explanation is, the less it explains.

It's the little things that count, but it's just as well not to let the big things get away from you.

NO LIGHT OF REJOICING IN FATHER'S EYES WHEN RUNAWAY CHILD IS FOUND

Helen McCarthy.

When Helen McCarthy, pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of John A. McCarthy, New York broker, was found after a two days' search, no light of rejoicing was seen in the father's eyes. He caught her by the chin, lifted her face and said:

"Well, Helen, you're here, are you?"
The girl was in a stupor. She had run away because she thought she had been ill-treated. The father told reporters that his daughter was mentally backward.

Food Needs For Summer

Call for easily digested cereals, fruits, etc., and less of the heavy, hard-to-digest kind.

But the nourishment must be there!

Probably the most nourishing, most easily digested cereal food known is

Grape-Nuts

Made from prime wheat and malted barley, it is ready to eat direct from the package; digests generally in about one hour, and contains the true brain and muscle building materials placed in the field grains by Nature for man's use.

Grape-Nuts food has delicious taste; and is pure, wholesome and a "builder" in the truest sense of the word—an ideal summer dish that does not over-heat the body.

WASHINGTON, 7; Boston, 4
BOSTON, July 2.—Washington won yesterday's game, 7 to 4. With Wagner back and with their line-up changed for the first time in two years, Boston had a nice little lead, 4 to 1, when the fifth inning opened. Then the Senators scored two off Bedient. Leonard relieved him and there was no more damage until the ninth when a wild throw by Leonard, a pass and a late throw to third by Leonard for a force-out, filled the bases with none out. Hall went into the box and Williams patted the second ball pitched to right for three bases. That settled it. Score: R H E Washington...000120400—7 11 0 Boston...100300000—4 10 1

TOM LEE, CHIEF OF ON LEONG TONG, MOST DANGEROUS HIGHBINDER IN NEW YORK

This is Tom Lee, "mayor" of Chinatown, New York, at peace with all the world, after a battle of forty years in which perhaps hundreds if not thousands of enemies have been shot down in the streets by his friends. Tom Lee has never been anxious to have his picture published, and photographs heretofore have been snapshots he tried to avoid.

But recently, having cleaned out the Four Brothers and the Hep Sing Tong, two rival societies of high-binders and gamblers, Tom consented to sign a treaty of peace.

MANSLAUGHTER LAID TO OFFICIALS

Coroner's Jury Blames the Heads of Elevated Road for Two Deaths in Accident

CHICAGO, July 2.—Acting under orders from Coroner Hoffman, deputy sheriffs started out today to take into custody on charges of manslaughter all officials of the Metropolitan West Side Elevated railroad and of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago Railway company, as the result of an almost unprecedented verdict returned by a coroner's jury late yesterday.

The railway officials were held by the jury to be responsible for the deaths of George M. Scott, civil war veteran, and his niece, Mrs. Harriet H. Smith, wife of Willis K. Smith, an operator on the Chicago board of trade, who were killed on June 22, when Smith's automobile was struck by a Metropolitan train running over the tracks of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago at a grade crossing.

Watching The Scoreboard

The Giants now have the whip hand and a half lead over the Phillies. While Marquard was holding the Doolites to four hits the Giants connected with 17. Murray had two doubles and a single.

Wilson's home run with Miller on base in the ninth inning was all that saved Pittsburgh from a shutout at the hands of the Cubs.

The Reds fell on Griner for 14 hits in 5 2-3 innings and romped away from the Cardinals. Bescher drew a double, triple and a single in the times at bat. Pitcher Benton was at bat three times and hit for a triple and two singles.

Things are not working according to schedule for Brooklyn. While the Phillies are being trounced by the Giants, Boston is taking games from the Dodgers and the latter's dream of second place are being shattered.

Borton of the Yanks hit safely in the fourth inning against the Athletics, was called back when a thrown ball hit Umpire Dineen, but cracked out another. It was a light hitting game, Frank Baker getting only the only extra base knock with a triple.

With the score 4 to 2 against his team and the bases full, Williams stepped up for Washington and drove out a three bagger, sewing up the game.

Detroit outbatted Chicago ten to five hits, but lost. The Tigers made four errors in the field.

HOOD'S MARE IN FAST WORKOUT

Alice McGregor, Assemblyman C. L. Hood's fast little mare, promises by her workouts this year to set a low mark for herself. She is being trained at Janesville by W. N. Millard of this city, and according to a message he sent friends in this city, she is doing better work than ever before. The mare has a mark of 2:15, but in practice Monday she turned off a mile in 2:08 3-4 without exerting herself, according to Mr. Millard. She made the last half mile in 1:04 1-2, a nine-second gain. Mr. Millard is also training President Jr., the Shadbolt horse from Calentia. "Billy," as President is called for short, has a mark of 2:35, but in practice has been easily making a mile in 2:17. Both horses are entered in most of the big races around the state this year.
